TUESDAY EVENING, SCPT. 2, 1902

The English Navy. In the earliest times of the British navy there was practically no distinct tion between the merchantman and the man-of-war. - In the rare times of peace men-of-war traded as merchantmen, while merchantmen always went armed. Thus in time of war the trader be-came the warship and vice versa. From the time of the conquest and probably earlier down to the days of Elizabeth this was the ordinary practice. Elizabeth hired out ships of the navy for all sorts of purposes, from piracy to slave trading, taking her since of the profits when the venture was sue easful and disclaiming all re-sponsibility when it wasn't.

Henry III., who may be described as the originator of the navy as a special sighting force, hired out the ships specially built for the navy in times of peace and even allowed them to be taken away from their appointed stations provided that the hirers deposited due security for the return of the ships with their tackle and all equipment in a proper state of efficiency. The prac-tice ceased after the repulse of the Spanish armada, when the fighting ship, as such, became distinct from the trader.—London Globe.

Meanings of the Word "Stove."

The word "stove," as applied to a heater for a room, seems to be of about the same age as the article to which the name is now applied, for while the word as a name had an existence in Tablets. For sale by Richard Gibson, early English it was used in a different | Druggist.

Both Lord Bacon and Woodward used it as referring to a house or room artificially warmed and particularly a hothouse for plants. Bacon also used the word as a verb in the way of keeping warm in a house or room, as "to stove orange trees and myrtles," to quote from his writings. Pepys used the verb in a nautical sense, as heating for the purpose of making pliable, as stove bolt ropes."

But all these definitions are obsolete now, such disuse dating from the time when Dr. Franklin made his discovertes and applications. The French word "etuve," it may be added, describes a hothquise or bathing room, and hence is parallel in meaning with the early Eng-

Pickpockets and Pins.

Artful as the ways of the "Heathen Chinee" are the dodges of the expert picker of pockets. The other night a young lady who had been to the theater was getting on to a tram car, and, knowing the possibilities opened up to the light tingered gentry by a crowd, she kept her hand in her pocket and grasped her purse firmly. Suddenly she felt a sharp prick as from a pin on her hand and, acting on the impulse, let go her hold of the purse and snatched her hand out, almost as quickly returning it, but she was too late. In the few seconds that had clapsed another hand had been there, and the purse was gone.

"I am afraid, Bobby," said his mother, "that when I feil your father what a naughty boy you've been he will pun-"Have you got to tell him?" asked Bobby earnestly. 'Oh, yes; I shall tell him immediately after dinner."

The look of concern on Bobby's face deepened.

"Well, mother," said be, "give him a better dinner than usual. You might do that much for me."-Pittsburg Dis-

A Short Cut to Sleep.

"Doctor," said he, "I'm a victim of least noise, such as a cat on the garden wall, for instance, This powder will be effective," replied the physician, after compound ing a prescription.

When do I take it, doctor?" "You don't take it. Give it to the cat in a little milk."-Family Doctor.

Putting Ilim Off.

He proposed on his way home from church one Sunday evening. She was too young to marry and did not want him, but she said "Yes," with the stip-niation that he should get her father's consent. The young man was happy until he discovered the next day that his adored one's father had been dead several years.
